Restorative Justice

Restorative Justice is a philosophy based on a set of principles that serve to guide the response to conflict or harm. These principles balance the needs of three parties in the justice process; the offender, the crime victim, and the affected community. The goal of Restorative Justice is to work with the court system to create the following:

Community Safety: Recognizing the need to keep the community safe. Community safety can be accomplished through building relationships and empowering the community to take responsibility for the well-being of its members.

Offender Accountability: Providing opportunities for offenders to be accountable to those they have harmed and enable them to repair the harm they caused to the extent possible.

Competency Development: Seeks to increase the pro-social skills of offenders by addressing the factors that lead minors to engage in delinquent behavior and building on the strengths each minor possess.
